White Rim - The White Rim Trail is the premier multi-day trail in Moab. The entire route encompasses over 90 miles of off-road driving. On the White Rim, you'll get to experience the beautiful scenery of the Island in the Sky district of Canyonlands National Park first hand while tackling the challenging terrain.

Gemini Bridges - Located north of Moab, in Grand County, this scenic trail is one of the most popular in Moab. If you are looking for the real Moab experience, this is it.

Onion Creek & Fisher Towers - Onion Creek is a must-do trail in the Moab area. The drive is sensory overload as you meander through several different rock formations formed hundreds of millions of years ago.

Rimrocker - Enjoy 160 miles of off-pavement travel while experiencing the many different stunning landscapes that connect Montrose, Colorado to Moab, Utah.

La Sal Pass - Break away from the valley heat in Moab and climb into the clouds along the La Sal Pass trail where rocky peaks tower over 12,000 feet.

Potash Road - This scenic drive located just three miles north of Moab follows the Colorado river and continues on a dirt road to Canyonlands National Park.

Shafer - Easy and iconic, the Shafer Trail is a must do when visiting Moab. The incredible and imposing rim walls still stand to remind you of just how grand planet Earth really is.

Geyser Pass - Geyser Pass is a high mountain pass at an elevation of 3,231m (10,600ft.) It's one of the highest mountain roads of Utah. (Possible winter closure.)

Chicken Corners - One of the more popular "easy" trails in the area, it follows a beautiful shelf road and eventually runs along the Colorado River. The last portion, known as "Chicken Corners," gives you a straight-down view of the river below.

Klondike Bluffs - Dinosaur tracks, slickrock, and washes - consider this your very own off-road Jurassic Park experience. Sitting just north of Moab and Arches National Park.

Mirramack and Monitor - This offroad trail is hidden amidst the paved and improved tourist areas directly off of Highway 313. It takes you to a more up-close and personal view of Merrimac and Monitor Buttes as well as a good bird's-eye view into Seven Mile Canyon.

Thompson Canyon - A nice, short drive that offers the beauty and serenity of the Floy Canyon Wilderness Study Area, one of the many wilderness study areas managed by the Bureau of Land Management in Utah. The lands surrounding the Thompson Canyon area protected, so remaining on the designated roadway is important.
